FISHER VERDICT FOR $25,000

ANOTHER HOLE IN THE WATER COMPANY'S EXCHEQUER.

This Makes Damages Against Them Secured at this Court Amount to Over $30,000 and More Suits Pending.

At one o'clock yesterday afternoon the case of Capt. B. J. Fisher against the Greensboro Water Supply Company for damages by reason of its alleged negligence in a failure to furnish water on the occasion of the burning of the Benbow House, then owned by the plaintiff went to the jury. At 10:30 last night the jury returned a verdict saying that the plaintiff was entitled to damages to the extent of $25,000.

This, with the other suits already won against the company, aggregate over $30,000, and there are suits for $12,000 still pending. All of these depend upon the principle established in the suit brought for Miss Gorrell by Solicitor A. L. Brooks, and all of these suits were brought subsequent to that one, and Mr. Brooks has been employed in all of them.

In the Fisher case, Messrs. A. L. Brooks and Jno. N. Staples appeared for the plaintiff, and King & Kimball and Bynum & Bynum for the defense. The plaintiff alleged that the Water Company, having been chartered for the purpose of furnishing water for domestic use and fire protection, and having taken possession of the streets and sidewalks of the city and thereby exercising the right of eminent domain, and being engaged in the business for private profit thereby, independent of the contract made with the city, obligated and undertook to perform the duties for which they were incorporated, to wit, to furnish water for fire protection at all times, and that this obligation and duty was more particularly emphasized by a contract which the said company made with the city, agreeing to furnish first class machinery and to afford the greatest protection against fire.

The plaintiff brought his suit in what in law is known as a tort, that is, for damages for the defendant's negligence in failing to furnish a sufficient pressure of water to save the plaintiff's property from burning, and set up the contract with the city as a further inducement to the obligation which they had already assumed by reason of the nature of their employment. The plaintiff, therefore, asked for damages in the sum of $40,000.

The defendants, replying, admitted that they were incorporated for the purposes alleged and were engaged in the effort to furnish water for the purposes stated, and that they had annually received from the city large sums of money in consideration of such service. They further admitted the contract with the city, but denied their liability in tort for any negligence that might be shown, and insisted that their duty was simply a contractual one, and that at the time of the fire which destroyed the plaintiff's hotel on the 17th of June, 1899, they had their water tower filled with water, and that the failure to get the needed pressure at the hydrants could not be reasonably charged to them.

The jury replied that the Water Company had negligently injured the plaintiff and that the latter was entitled to damages in the sum of $25,000.

He Went Back.

The ground hog made his appearance today on schedule time, emerging from the shady side of West Market street, and proceeding to wend his way down South Elm. Before reaching the depot he was met by the minstrel band, and either becoming frightened at the music they made, or else for the first time noticing his shadow, he made a break for the vacant lot in the rear of the new Greensboro Loan & Trust building and has not since been seen. According to tradition this means six weeks more of winter weather, provided it was not the band that made his hogship beat so hasty a retreat.

Creston Clarke.

Creston Clarke and his troupe last night scored a decided success. The audience was small, much less than so good a play as the "Last of His Race" deserved.

Married Last Night.

In Thursday's Telegram there appeared a clipping from the Winston Journal concerning a young man who tried to obtain a marriage license in that city to marry a girl whom he claimed lived in Greensboro but who was visiting in Charlotte, saying that she would meet him in High Point and they would go to Winston to be married. The register of deeds refused to issue license as the girl's alleged age could not be substantiated, and so the young man went his way.

The young lady in question proved to be Miss Eva Andrew, a daughter of Mr. W. H. Andrew, of this city, and for some time has been visiting her sister in Charlotte. Mr. Andrew yesterday received a letter from his daughter from Mt. Airy stating that she and the above mentioned young man, Mr. W. N. Short, of Mt. Airy, were married Thursday at the home of the groom.

There was no objection to the match on the part of the young lady's parents, and it is supposed that the couple only wanted to be married in a romantic manner.

Mr. Short is a merchant of Mt. Airy, and is well known there.

A Pleasant Occasion.

A large party of young folks of the northern side of town spent a most enjoyable evening last night at the residence of Dr. J. K. Stockard on Church street, the occasion being what is known as a pound party. About ten couples were present and enjoyed the occasion to their fullest extent.

WHITE NOT WORTH IMPEACHING

A MEMBER OF THE COMMITTEE SAYS HE'LL NOT BE TRUSTED.

The Impeachment Proceedings in the House Yesterday and Last Night in Detail.

Special dispatch to the Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb. 2.—Bills were introduced today allowing persons to redeem land sold for taxes.

The House passed a bill giving the Governor control of the Steamer Lilly.

Thompson says that the evidence against Shellfish Commissioner White is sufficient to justify his impeachment, but he is not worth the trouble and expense. The Senate also passed the bill regarding the Steamer Lilly.

The House killed the bill requiring the execution of all criminals to be in the penitentiary.

Yesterday's Proceedings from The Post.

There were significant developments yesterday in the impeachment proceedings instituted in the House of Representatives against Chief Justice D. M. Furches and Associate Justice R. M. Douglas of the Supreme Court.

Ex-Judge Wm. R. Allen, the chairman of the sub-judiciary committee of the House which has the impeachment resolution under consideration, yesterday introduced in the House a resolution authorizing Speaker Moore to subpoena witnesses before the committee for examination. The resolution was adopted unanimously after its introduction.

Acting upon this resolution Speaker Moore at once summoned as witnesses to appear before the sub-judiciary committee Judge Walter Clark and Judge W. A. Montgomery of the Supreme Court, Mr. Hal W. Ayer, ex-State Auditor, Mr. W. H. Worth, ex-State Treasurer, and Col. Thomas S. Kenan, Clerk of the Supreme Court.

The committee was excused from the House yesterday at noon and began at once the examination of witnesses. The examination by the committee was secret and was held in the Supreme Court room. No one save the five members of the committee were present.

The committee met again last night. At the afternoon session Judge W. A. Montgomery and Col. Thomas S. Kenan were the witnesses examined. Last night Judge Walter Clark of the Supreme Court gave testimony. This morning ex-Treasurer Worth and ex-Auditor Ayer will be examined.

Just what testimony was developed is not known. It is generally understood that both Judges Montgomery and Clark gave it as their opinion that the action of a majority of the Supreme Court in issuing the mandamus on the Auditor and Treasurer for payment of the White claim in defiance of an expressed legislative act forbidding same, was unconstitutional and in excess of the authority of the court. It was also stated that both judges would not take part in issuance of the mandamus.

Col. Thomas S. Kenan, clerk of the Supreme Court, testified as to his connection with the mandamus in the White case. Col. Kenan did not issue the mandamus until so instructed by a majority of the court. He had no discretionary power and obeyed the mandate of the court.

The sub-committee may make a report today. Ex-Judge Wm. R. Allen the chairman of the sub-committee considering the impeachment resolution is also chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. He stated yesterday that the Judiciary Committee would be called to meet as soon as the sub-committee concludes its consideration of the impeachment resolution. If this is so the full committee may be called to meet today. With so many members out of the city on Saturdays the meeting of the full committee may not take place until Monday.

It is almost certain that the resolution will be reported one way or another to the House Monday. The report will probably be taken up the day it reaches the House. There is much speculation among all classes of people as to the outcome of the impeachment proceedings.

The members of the sub-judiciary committee who are considering the impeachment resolution are:

Ex-Judge W. R. Allen of Wayne, chairman.

Mr. Locke Craig of Buncombe.

Ex-Judge H. G. Connor of Wilson.

Mr. J. A. Spainhour of Burke.

The House Resolution.

The resolution introduced in the House yesterday by ex-Judge Allen of Wayne, and which was unanimously adopted is as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives, that the Speaker of the House issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents and papers before the Judiciary Committee of the House or a sub-committee thereof upon the application of the chairman of the said Judiciary Committee in the matter of the resolution of impeachment of David M. Furches, chief justice of North Carolina, and Robert M. Douglas, associate justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina.

Subpoenas to Witnesses.

The subpoena issued by Speaker Moore of the House of Representatives, summoning witnesses to appear before the sub-judiciary committee, is given herewith:

State of North Carolina.

To the Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives:

Greeting: You are hereby commanded to summon W. A. Montgomery, Walter Clark, W. H. Worth, H. W. Ayer, Jos. L. Seawell and Thomas S. Kenan to appear before the committee on the judiciary of the House of Representatives, or a sub-committee thereof, at the Supreme Court library, in the city of Raleigh, at 11:30 o'clock on February 1, 1901, and testify in a certain matter now under investigation by the House of Representatives, relating to the impeachment of David M. Furches, chief justice of North Carolina, and Robert M. Douglas, associate justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, and that the said Thomas S. Kenan bring with him a transcript of the records in the case of Theophilus White against Hal W. Ayer, auditor, and W. H. Worth, treasurer, determined at February term, 1900, of the Supreme Court together with the opinion and judgment of the court rendered in said action, and the writ issued to enforce the same, and any and all books and dockets containing entries and memoranda relating to said action, or anything done therein and any other papers or documents relating to said action. Herein fail not and of this writ make due return.

This first day of February, 1901.

(Signed.) WALTER E. MOORE, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Directors Meeting.

The directors of the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company met yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in an adjourned session of their annual meeting. The old officers and directors were re-elected.

The officers of the company are: President, R. G. Vaughn; Vice-President, C. G. Wright; Secretary and Treasurer, J. S. Hunter; Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, R. E. Reeves. Directors: Messrs. C. G. Wright, R. G. Vaughn, A. W. McAlister, J. S. Hunter, T. A. Hunter, H. W. Cobb, J. B. Duke, and J. S. Cobb.

Looking for a Pair of Horses.

The Hook and Ladder Company at their meeting Thursday night appointed a committee to buy a pair of horses to be used to the company's truck. The boys will own these horses themselves and they say that pulling the truck is the only work that their horses will be allowed to do. The committee is investigating the merits of different horses now with a view of making the purchase.

Barlow's Minstrels.

The Barlow Minstrels, advertised for the Academy of Music tonight, made their first "appearance" on Elm street this morning, and drew a big crowd to their open air concert and parade. They are a handsome set of men and play "to beat de band." The Academy will no doubt be crowded tonight.

I. & I. Association Meeting.

The Industrial and Immigration Association had another meeting this morning for the purpose of looking after some public enterprise which they are working for in behalf of the city.

QUEEN'S BODY TO WINDSOR.

IMMENSE CROWDS LINE THE VIEW POINTS.

Only Millionaires and Athletes Could See to do Much Good—The Hospitals Had Their Hands Full.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Portsmouth, England, Feb. 2.—A heavy rain was falling at 9:30 this morning when the royal mourners left the yacht for Clarence yard, where the Alberts lay all night. Admiral Sir Charles Sothair, flag officers and captains of all the ships in the harbor, with other naval officers, attended the disembarkation of the body, which at 8:45 was carried off the yacht. Enormous crowds had gathered. The royal train left Gasport at 8:53. Guards mounted the warships and minute guns were fired as the coffin was borne by blue jackets and transferred to the waiting saloon carriage of the train to London.

Arrived in London.

London, Feb. 2.—Three millions of people were massed along the two mile route and were kept back by thirty-two thousand police. The ten thousand policemen in the procession passed Buckingham Palace at 11:55 on the way to Paddington station, whence the body will be conveyed to Windsor.

The procession moved punctually in accordance with the official program to the strains of Chopin's funeral march. The march was played by massed bands. All England apparently poured into London to pay the last tribute to the late sovereign. Many, hopeful of obtaining front places, took stations in the park during the night, despite the bitterness of the weather, but only athletes and millionaires saw the procession to advantage. The soldiers, shoulder to shoulder, lined the route for two miles. The sun tried to come out, but by eleven o'clock the weather had settled into a dull, cold, dispiriting gray day.

Arrival at Windsor.

Windsor, Feb. 2.—A gunshot signalled the arrival of the train here, and thereafter minute guns were fired. The cortege entered the gates of Windsor Castle park, and reached St. George's Chapel, to which the body was carried, a distance of fully half a mile. The gate of Windsor Castle park divided the route, leaving only a bare quarter of a mile open to the public. Here, at one o'clock the black, silent expectant mass was wedged behind a line of troops. The only movement occurred when ambulance workers lifted numerous persons, who had fainted, into the hospital carts.

The hospitals were kept busy during the long wait of the great crowds for the arrival of the funeral train. Some of the cases were serious. One woman died.

Mrs. Stewart's Condition Critical.

A telegram was received here today from Mr. M. C. Stewart, who is with his wife in Orlando, Fla., stating that the condition of Mrs. Stewart, who went to Florida for her health, was critical. Her father, Mr. Foust, who lives near Greensboro, will leave tonight for Florida.

Ruffin Hanged.

Special to News and Observer.

Burlington, N. C., Feb. 1.—The young rapist, John Ruffin, was hanged near here about 12 o'clock today by Sheriff L. B. McAdams.

The execution was public but owing to the fact that Ruffin had been twice respited, the crowd was small. The condemned man made a speech on the gallows, inviting his hearers to meet him in Heaven.

Ruffin was convicted of rape upon the person of a little negro girl, Gertrude Keens by name, at the November term of Alamance court. He was sentenced to be executed on January 4th, but was respited by Governor Russell to January 25th. Then a further respite was given by Gov. Aycock till today.

The community was much excited over the question as to whether he should suffer the full penalty prescribed by the law for his crime. His youth and ignorance were pleaded in extenuation, but in vain.

W. C. T. U. DEPARTMENT.

[CONDUCTED BY THE LOCAL UNION.]

No voter can help holding one of the following relationships to the saloons in his community: That of ignorance, apathy, complicity or protest. His neighbors could tell him which of the four he holds, with but little hesitation. "Oh wad some power the giftie gie us, to see ourselves as others see us." But he may be less clear than they, and even with the intention of being loyal to humanity's best interests he may be doing quite the contrary. But no man of the smallest intelligence can be ignorant of the fact that the saloon is today the chief destructive force in society; that the cumulative testimony of judge, jury and executive officers of law declares that fifty per cent. of the idiosyncrasy and lunacy, eighty per cent. of the crimes, and ninety per cent. of the pauperism come from strong drink; that the saloon holds the balance of power in almost every city of ten thousand inhabitants; that it is the curse of working men and the sworn foe of home.

"They always win who side with God" is not only the trust of the Christian heart, but is the lofty belief of the patriot and student of history.

God with men is not simply a possibility, but a fact, where any evil is to be overthrown, and His power at hand make victory assured. "What is the condition of His presence? must therefore be the question of supremest moment to those who desire to see the temperance reform move on to the conquest. In finding this we turn from half truths and vain reasonings of men to inquire what the Lord says for Himself in this matter.

"Come out from among them, and be ye separate; touch not the unclean thing and I will receive you." This is the enlistment order, if we are going with God into the war.

Absolute separation from the evil, which is to go down, is the first condition. "Come out," "be separate;" "touch not." Can that mean to "work with all parties" to compromise on "high license?" to "tax and regulate?" and in order to reach the best method, and find not the right but the attainable, go on casting the ballot for those whose highest ideal is to regulate and thereby perpetuate the unclean thing? The mighty necessities of this hour and this question are not lonely in the world's history.

So Israel was separated from other nations to accomplish Jehovah's will. So Moses went to the gate with the cry of separation when the camp was defiled by the worship of the golden calf. So Gideon found his dauntless three hundred who conquered by "lamps, pitches" and a devout war-cry. In this way moral victories have always been reached.

We are at the hour when one tremendous thing in this reform is method. "Come out," "be separate," "touch not," is the method in the unseen where the Lord of Hosts is leading to victory.

Durham to Have a Fair.

Durham Herald.

Durham is to have a fair of her own, and the first meet will be held sometime this year.

Sometime in the near future application will be made for a charter for the "Durham County Fair and Driving Association," which will start off with a capital of fifteen thousand dollars behind it.

A few days ago several of our citizens met in the directors' room of the First National bank and then it was decided that the above should be the name of the organization; that $15,000 should be raised to put back of the movement, and that the stock should be sold for $10 per share.

SATURDAY NIGHT.

Six days have passed into eternity, and the record is made. Good? To a certain extent, yes. We have said a few—only a few, kind words to the weary, travel stained pilgrim on earth's chill and dreary pathway; we have given a few pennies to a forgotten brother or forsaken father as they, with sore and bleeding hearts, plod the comfortless way to the tomb, hoping that a life of neglect and sorrow may soon be brought to a close. What a sad fate; with no one to love, none to caress and bind up the broken heart, and pour the oil of gladness into the darkened soul, no more of the sweet melody of childhood, no more bright smiles on dimpled cheeks; no more rippling laughter from ruby lips and pearly teeth; no more fond and loving embraces from the dear companions long since departed to the bright and beautiful beyond. All, all is dark and dreary to the sorrow-stricken and wretched outcast.

"Into every life some rain must fall, some days must be dark and dreary."

Cheer up, neglected one, lifting your eyes and heart in earnest, heartfelt prayer to Him who notes even the fall of the sparrow, and who is in perfect sympathy with His humblest creation. There is balm in Gilead; He is a physician there, who can and will pour a glad song of rejoicing into your soul, and cause your heart to throb with emotions of pleasure and bliss unspeakable.

Every dark cloud has a silver lining; look aloft and catch the bright smile of Heaven's King through the rift in the clouds. Let angelic strains fill your sad, sad soul with such music as earth knows not of, and can never hear, except echoed through the dark waves of truth and disappointment.

Now we have said, and as we take the nightly kiss and embrace from the dear ones of our heart, we pray God to make every heart glad, every soul joyful, and every mind tranquil on this bright—and to us—happy, Saturday night.

Chinese Colony for Mexico.

Special to The Telegram.

San Francisco, Feb. 2.—The report made public a short time ago that back of a steamship company recently organized in this city, with $12,500,000 capital, is a plan to colonize Mexico with Oriental laborers, gains credence by recent developments.

The promoters of the scheme, it is asserted, have obtained from the Mexican government a large concession and the plan is to bring a million Chinese to Mexico and establish fisheries, canneries and warehouses along the Mexican coast.

A circular just issued in the Chinese language states that the "Pacific Charter Company" proposes, on behalf of the Mexican government, to encourage Chinese, as well as Europeans, to come to Mexico, where they will have special privileges.

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

HANDSON, VA., Dec. 31.

I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the female organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2

Mr. Craig and the other members who are working the impeachment proceedings should not forget that they had to apologize in the Curry fiasco.

WHY NOT THIS TIME?

We referred a day or two ago to the recent stand taken by the Charlotte News for compulsory education, and expressed the opinion that it might not be wisest for this Legislature to attempt any universal compulsory law. The News refers to this point and asks:

But if compulsory education is right, and the Telegram agrees with us that it is, why delay it?

What is the use of wasting two years of precious time—especially precious to the developing child-mind by delaying the enactment of a compulsory school law?

If the Legislature keeps its pledges to the people to give us better schools, why not take a decisive and effectual step at once. We may be considered radical in this matter, but we had rather be radically right than conservatively wrong. We have been trying for thirty years to devise some plan to get children to attend school, and still our white population, as a whole, stands first in illiteracy. If we ever intend to make a start for effectual results, let's do it now.

If the news had been wrestling with this subject as long as we have it would not need to ask these questions. Months ago, when The Telegram as the only daily paper in the State favoring a compulsory school law, began the discussion of it, both editorially and by specially contributed articles, like The News, it felt the fervor of a new convert and could see no reason why the law should not be enacted at once. But it is now inclined to think that the enactment of this legislation will better be the work of the next Legislature than this.

We come to this conclusion, not from any belief that the law is not needed, but because of the fact that a necessary preliminary step must be taken in order to make the carrying out of such a law more satisfactory. That work, which it is the duty of this Legislature to perform, is the organization of the schools into a compact system, with adequate supervision, with better and more roomy houses, in other words, to get ready to take care of the children when they shall come. If this Legislature can do this work and furnish the increased sum of money necessary, they will be doing all that is required of them and will also be preparing the ground for a compulsory law.

PROTECT HIM!

We trust the communication in yesterday's Telegram from a barber, advocating the passage of the bill proposing to regulate the barber's trade, was not overlooked. That feature of the article which refers to the increased subservience of the "patient" while in the chair, which would come by reason of the bill's dignifying the trade into a "profession" is especially noteworthy. With the author of the article we cordially agree, that any measure which will add to the docility of a man who is so unreasonable as to kick up a great fuss and perhaps use cuss words while having his facial vegetation plucked, needs the discipline of a statutory law. It must not be forgotten, in this imperialistic season, that even barbers have some rights. One of those rights is that his "patients" should attribute any slight discomfort that they may experience while being operated upon, to professional wisdom and not to the clumsiness of the boss of the chair.

A doctor buries his mistakes, as has often been said; a minister's go unconquered, a dentist breaks his off and then yanks out the roots as the only thing in the world that can save the jaw bone; but when a barber, by mistake, applies scalding lather to his patient's face or pulls his whiskers out with a blade that has carved a coon the night before, why, unreasonably, and unjustly, to be sure, he is cussed. The barber must be protected.

AFTER A TRAITOR.

Proof Before the House that the Delegate From Hawaii is a Traitor.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Charges have been submitted to the House committee on elections No. 1, against delegate Robert W. Wilcox, the Hawaiian representative in the House of Representatives, by Geo. D. Gear, of Hawaii, who submitted letters purporting to be copies of letters written by Wilcox to Filipino officials. The alleged letters are of a highly sensational character. One bears the alleged signature of Wilcox. It is dated Honolulu, January 31, 1899, and is addressed to Dr. Jos Losada, Captain Marti Burgos and Senor J. Luna, and introduced to them "a friend of mine who is a very able man to help you in your cause." Among other things, the letter says: "Mr. ——— will be a useful ally to fight for the cause of the Philippines. One thing is sure that you could resist against any army of invasion. You have a population of 12,000,000 and already a disciplined army of 30,000 well equipped with modern arms."

"I have already made up my mind to join with you in your country against America in case they insist to ignore the rights, the justice of your cause. I know well my profession as an artillery officer. I have no fear of the whole world when I fight for a legitimate cause like yours. Between General Aguinaldo's determination and myself it would be very little chance left to the invading army of the United States to conquer your country. Tell General Aguinaldo I have already given my service for your country and I am ready to obey orders to go to your country and fight for the independence of your people and country at any moment."

Another letter, dated Honolulu, March 8th, 1899, says: "I am thinking to go to the Philippine Islands and give my assistance to Aguinaldo against the invaders—the hypocritical Yankees—the carpet-bag politician, Otis."

The petition says there was no election machinery when Wilcox was elected delegate, November 6th, 1900, and that many voters therefore made no attempt to vote. It is alleged that Wilcox, in his speeches prior to the election, made use of the strongest kind of anti-American utterances for the purpose of carrying the election, telling the native Hawaiians that the Americans had stolen their country and that a vote for him was a vote for the restoration of the Queen; and that if he were elected the Queen would be restored; that said Wilcox was and is guilty of treason against the United States in that he did as petitioner is informed and believes, since the annexation of said Hawaiian Islands, write and send through the United States mails certain letters highly treasonable in their nature, wherein he did counsel and incite others to engage in open rebellion against the United States, and did so offer his own services."

The petition, in conclusion, charges his election was invalid; that "he is not a fit and proper person" to represent Hawaii; alleges bigamy and further alleges "written and uttered treasonable language;" wherefore it is petitioned he should be expelled from Congress.

Mr. Wilcox says he has no fear of the charges made. He admits that he wrote a letter to Dr. Losada, Captain Burgos and Senor Luna, introducing C. Caesar Morino, an Italian of this city, whom he knew while the latter was in Hawaii, and to whom the undated letter filed by Gear was addressed, but he said he was unable to say whether the letters filed were exact copies of those sent.

No Advance in Steel Rails.

Special to The Telegram.

Pittsburg, Feb. 2.—The steel rail manufacturers have wisely decided not to raise the price of their product to $28 per ton, this month, as was proposed two weeks ago. In the face of increasing and threatened competition, it is not deemed wise to hold up the railroad companies for higher prices at present, at least.

The most soothing, healing and antiseptic application ever devised is DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It relieves at once and cures piles, sores, eczema and skin diseases. Beware of imitations. Howard Gardner.

To Save the Birds.

Special to The Telegram.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 2.—If a bill now before the legislature becomes a law, the women of New Jersey must take the birds from their hats or suffer a term of imprisonment, or a fine of $5 for each bird worn and for each day's possession of the bird. Senator Cross, the author of the bill, is one of the most influential law makers of the 125th legislature, and has introduced and is pressing the bill at the request of the Audubon Society.

Of the 600,000 married and marriageable women in this State, it is estimated that fully 300,000 like the wild birds' plumage as a part of their head-gear.

150 Animals Burned.

Baltimore Dispatch, 30th.

Bostock's Zoo in the Cyclorama Building was destroyed by fire tonight. The animals, with the exception of an elephant and a camel, were burned to death. Two lions were shot to prevent their escape to the streets. For a time all sorts of sensational stories were circulated relative to wild animals running loose.

The fire was caused by a defective electric wire. The loss will amount to about $200,000.

So quickly did the flames spread that the keepers were helpless to save their charges. In all 150 animals, besides the birds, were lost. Madame Chiquita and other women performers were forced to flee for their lives.

The fire started just after the night performance. The women were in their apartments getting into street clothes when the alarm was sounded. The trainers rushed to save their pets, but were driven back by the flames.

The shrieks and cries of the imprisoned animals could be heard blocks away, but so quickly did the flames spread that their misery was of short duration.

Early in the fire several calcium light tanks exploded, adding to the excitement.

SLEEP IN THE CIGARETTE.

Bethan Compound Used by an Expert Spanish Thief on Passengers.

Prof. de Gubernatis, the well-known Italian orientalist, has been the victim of a crime often read of in lurid tales, but seldom experienced in real life. The other day he was traveling in a first-class carriage in which there was one other individual. He went to sleep and on arriving at Paris found himself without his purse, containing 1,400 francs. He immediately complained to the station authorities and not long after a certain Spaniard, Alfredo Garcia, of Barcelona, who described himself as a silk merchant, was arrested, says a London paper.

In spite of his protestations of innocence his baggage was examined and was found to contain, besides a knife, money and scissors used by thieves for cutting out pockets, a case with some cigarettes. This last object in the possession of a Spaniard is not a suspicious circumstance, but one of the police thought he would try them, and to his astonishment the room full of people were soon all soundly and peacefully sleeping. An examination proved that the cigarettes contained a substance, the smoke of which acts as a narcotic, while the smoker experiences no inconvenience after having become accustomed to it. The arrest of the professor's traveling companion was soon effected, but Prof. de Gubernatis has not recovered a penny of his lost money.

THEY WERE ALWAYS HERE.

According to This Account Cockroaches and Bedbugs Are of Very Ancient Lineage.

In the very oldest fossil-bearing rocks no insects are found. The very oldest fossil is a kind of polyp, making reefs of limestone, when as yet thin-sect had not appeared, and it "flourished" in Canada, says the London Spectator. The first insect known to have existed, a creature of such vast antiquity that it deserves all the respect which the parvenu man can summon and offer to it, was a cockroach. This the father of all black beetles, probably walked the earth in solitary magnificence when not only kitchens, but even kitchen maidens were undreamed of, possibly millions of years before neolithic man had even a back cave to offer with the remains of last night's supper for the cockroach of the period to enjoy. His discovery established the fact that in the silurian period there were insects, though, as the only piece of his remains found was a wing, there has been room for dispute as to the exact species. Mr. Gross in his preface to the second edition of his book notes says that what is probably a still older insect has been found in the lower silurian in Sweden. This was not a cockroach, but apparently something worse. If the Latin name, Protocimex Siluricus, be literally translated, it means the original silurian bug.

DOG TRAVELS 1,000 MILES.

The Faithful Animal Could Not Bear Separation from His Master.

Sport, an Irish setter belonging to Police Officer Michael Smith, of the Rogers park station, finished a 1,000-mile journey one night recently, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Smith visited Nelson county, N. D., last September, and left the dog with his friend, Indian Chief Bowlder Head. He returned to Chicago on September 28. A week later Sport disappeared from his new home.

The Indian chief had intended to keep the dog until next fall, when Smith promised to return to the frontier to hunt big game. When he missed the dog he wrote to Smith to look out for the animal, as he had started for home.

As Smith opened the front door of his house the other evening a dog jumped at him, almost knocking him down. It was Sport, who covered his master with caresses and continued his demonstrative show of affection until he fell exhausted on the floor.

The faithful dog was emaciated from lack of food, and he bore numerous wounds and scars, received doubtless in battles with savage curs during his long journey.

Sport is of noted pedigree and is 2 1/2 years old.

London Mail Coaches Menaced.

Doubtless for reasons of economy and expedition the post offices have their parcels between London and Brighton conveyed by mail coach, says a London exchange. By virtue of an old act, which has never been repealed, this coach is obliged to carry an arms basket containing a couple of pistols and an old cutlass. Highway robbery of the Dick Turpin type is practically unknown now in this country, but it would satisfy the public curiosity very much if one could be definitely informed whether the antique weapons carried by the Brighton coach are meant to serve as a sentimental link with the past or to be used as a means of defense in case of attack.

Dressing of Kid.

Fine kid is treated with a mixture of fine flour and yolks of eggs. One factory in London uses ten sacks of flour and 2,000 eggs a week for the purpose.

Population of Athens.

The present population of Athens in Greece is only 80,000. There is no accurate census of the city when in its ancient glory, but it is supposed at one time to have contained 500,000 inhabitants.

QUESTION OF ETIQUETTE.

As to Whether the Hat Should Be Removed in a Public Elevator.

In the elevators in one of the large office buildings of this city, says the Washington Star, appears a neatly painted sign which reads as follows: "This is a public elevator. Gentlemen are not required to remove their hats."

"That's common sense, if it is abrupt," said a well-known bon vivant and globe trotter, screwing his monocle more tightly in his eye as he read the words.

"It is a mistaken chivalry and false sense of politeness which will cause a man to uncover in the presence of a lady in a public place such as an elevator in a public or business building, a street car, railroad car, ferry boat, railroad station, omnibus or other public vehicle or place, as it is an evidence of lack of metropolitan training and cosmopolitan knowledge. And a woman who would expect it is the kind of lady whose punctiliousness is about on a par with her breeding."

"To most men an elevator is an elevator, whether it is in a hotel or a courthouse. In a hotel it is the acknowledged custom in this country and abroad to remove the hat in the presence of ladies, so some of my over polite brothers think they must uncover in public. A hotel is in effect a dwelling house for a number of people, and rules which prevail in dwelling houses and drawing-rooms are not to be observed in the street, public places or in business."

"None of the deference due to the gentler sex is lost by the observance of rules to fit the occasion. Over politeness and undue servility are as ill-bred as an utter absence of courtesy."

OATHS ARE SELDOM HEARD.

Profanity Is Becoming Less Conspicuous Except in Small Villages.

"I was reading the other day," said a New York lawyer, "of a visit paid by a Boston man to a little village in Vermont. He declared that all the men and the boys swore incessantly in their conversation; that with them profanity had become instinctive, commonplace and even necessary. It had through long use lost all its force and emphasis; had become an inseparable part of everyday and simple speech."

"I believe this to be true. The little villages I have visited, both in New York and the west, do more swearing to the inhabitant, ten times over, than you will hear in the city of New York."

"To my mind the elimination of profanity from the daily conversation is a matter of culture rather than of religion. Men cease to swear from gentlemanly instincts, just as they avoid other forms of vulgarity. I attend a club regularly where several hundred men lunch each day—men of all lines of trade and of the professions, men who smoke and drink their wines and liquors within reasonable bounds. But they don't swear. You will not hear one oath a day, and when you do it is a part of some story that is told and is dropped in for picturesque emphasis."

"The same thing holds true of the men I meet in other walks of life. You don't hear much of it from the teamsters and other workmen upon the streets. I have heard more oaths from the country yokel in one summer than from all the men I have met in New York for the past ten years."

CANTON SLIPPERS.

Advantages of Chinese Woman's Footgear Made of Grass and Bamboo.

For house wear, especially during warm weather, no slippers can be compared with those which are made in the province of Kwang-tung. The material is grass or split bamboo, and the sole is made of dried palm leaves, sewed together with strong twine. There is no heel-piece, and the sole is flat. For people with a sensitive cuticle, an inner sole or lining of cotton cloth, Canton flannel, or raw silk can be easily secured. They are strong and durable, and retain both their shape and color. A pair can be worn a year, says the New York Post.

What they cost in the beginning in China is impossible to tell. In the past two years a lady's slipper has appeared in the New York market which promises to become very well liked. It is similar to the Chinese shoe, in having a very thick sole, made of porous wood, covered on the sides with white kid. The body and uppers are made of cloth, either white or colored, and embroidered with silk floss or with silver and gold threads. They are a trifle awkward at first, on account of the thick sole, but they are so warm and comfortable, and so well fitted to the feet, that in a fortnight the owner prefers them to almost any other kind. The price depends upon the embroidery, and ranges from 75 cents to two and three dollars.

THE SECOND ACT

By Owen Oliver.

"D. R. STRANGE has told you of my delusion," he said, with an un-mirthful smile. "Let us start from the delusion. I cannot very well tell my story in any other way."

He pushed his papers aside, leaned back in the cozy reading chair and folded his hands. The scene haunts me yet. His dark, grave face, with its raven hair and long, pointed beard; his soft, weary voice; the chirping of the birds, the humming of the bees, and the hazy breaths of summer air, stealing in through the barred windows—I remember them all. This is the story:

Four thousand years ago, when men worshiped God under the name of Osiris and Isis, I was Amenemhat IV., king in Kem—which you call Egypt. My conquests and my learning are graven upon the great tablets, but the scribes left unsaid what should be unsaid. Therefore you will seek in vain for mention of Numidea, the slave.

Felix, the trader, brought her from over the Mediterranean. When she stood before me with flushed cheeks and tears in her pale blue eyes, the cunning knave refused to name a price.

"The world is thine, O king," he said, "and the maid, if it be thy will. Give to me only what she seemeth worth to thee."

So I gave him a nome—or province—and dealt somewhat niggardly with him, methought. Then I took her to the palace to be queen, under the name of Sebek-nefru-ra, which is on the tablets. The people murmured, yet none dared to complain to my face, but Numidea, the blue-eyed slave, with her soft locks and her frightened voice, was braver than they.

"Kill me, if thou wilt, oh king," she said, tauntingly, "for in truth I love thee not at all." A whole month I wooed her, disdaining force, and she said no more. Then she cast her eyes upon Kales, the captain of the guard, and cared less than ever for me.

I sent Kales on a journey beyond the seas. I would have slain him, but he was a brave man, and we had played and fought together as children. And then Numidea struck me with her small, soft hand.

"Take her to the deathsmen," I commanded; "in the morning she shall die." Lest I should break a king's word I rode to the great temple far away. But I could not sleep for the thought of her great blue eyes, wide with fear. So I rose and bade them harness the swiftest horses to the lightest chariot, and Charmicles drove for me, whose hand was the lightest upon the reins. All the night we sped in the moonlight with the sand flying in long clouds behind us and the great pyramids scowling upon us from afar.

"If thou lovest a slave, Charmicles," I asked him, "and she loved not thee?" "If I loved her a little," he said, "happily she would perish, oh lord."

"And if thou lovest her much?" He looked at the moon fleeing through the clouds for a long time, and his face grew sad.

"If I loved her enough, oh king—perchance I should set her free."

I covered my head in my robe and said nothing. Was I not racing the flying hours to open her prison doors?

Ra, the sun-god, sprung up, and laughed upon the land, and Charmicles wiped the sweat from his brow and ceased to strike the horses as they panted and struggled to the base of the great pyramid, where the prison was.

And behind they had tortured her; and she had died in the night!

I drew my sword upon myself, but Charmicles stayed my hand. "Shall they write upon the tablets that Amenemhat of the holy line died for love of a slave?" he said.

So I went back to the temple and dwelt. Presently I made a spell, from my arts, that I might be reborn when she was reborn, and another spell that I died, and none knew why. So I fell asleep, and my sleep was 4,000 years.

When I was newborn a child I knew none of these things; but one by one they came back to me.

One evening my father held me upon his knee and showed me a quaint picture book, and I trembled with vague remembrance.

"This is how people drew in Egypt thousands of yesterdays ago," he said. "The lines are all straight, because they were cut upon stone. See, these are archers, and these are horses, and this looks like a big bull."

I touched the figure of Apis reverently with my hand.

"This," I said, "is a god."

Another time they took me to a museum, and I stopped by a carved sarcophagus and would not move away. There were things graven upon it that I seemed almost to understand, and names that were half familiar.

When I went back to school I stood aloof from the games to dream of flying spears and racing chariots. My playfellow—I will call him Rupert—was always in the memories with me. Often when we wrestled together the playground seemed to swim away. Instead there came a vision of yellow sand and blue skies, and dark, black-haired playmates around, and a shouting of "Well striven, little king!" Once, when he had been ill for a long time, and I went to see him, a name sprung up almost to my lips—the name was forgotten, but I knew it had been his name long before.

After leaving school I devoted myself to Egyptian antiquities. They seemed to present no difficulty to me, and I soon made a great name. Meanwhile the conviction grew upon me that I had lived in Egypt many years before. I even began to realize dimly that I was Amenemhat IV., of whom the histories said so little.

Then I met Nerissa, and for awhile I studied no more. There was no one, nothing else in all the world that mattered the least to me. I became her accepted lover, and for a few months I lived in paradise.

After this I had a strong fever. In the dreams and delirium the past came back to me, and when I was well again I remembered. I was Amenemhat and she was Numidea, the blue-eyed slave. As I had ordered by the spell, I was reborn to live with her again. Kales, her lover, had known no spells, I told myself. So he was in the future or the past, perhaps by a thousand years, as the gods had ordered, and she was not for him but for me. The thought of her wrong in the past made me wondrously tender to her, and she was always gentle. Yet I tortured myself that she did not love me as I loved her. "When we are married—it will come," I told myself. "It shall come."

One day in the spring we were sitting together. Rupert had come home on a furlough from his regiment in India, and came first to see me. They looked at one another for a long time. There was remembrance in their eyes. Fool that I had been to think myself wiser than the gods! He was Kales.

The room grew dark and I fainted. When I came to they propped me up with pillows and sat beside me. They spoke as if they had known one another for years. It seemed, they said, that they must have met before, and they talked jestingly of a transmigration of souls.

After that they seemed always meeting. The light leaped into their faces when they saw each other. They looked wistfully backward when they parted. I entreated Nerissa to hasten our wedding day, but she tearfully refused.

"Suppose," she said, "that we had made a mistake, after all? Sometimes I think—" She paused here, and when I questioned her she was silent.

One evening I went slowly into her boudoir and heard them talking passionately. I lingered behind a great screen. It was an unworthy thing to do; but I would have done worse—far worse—for love of her.

"You love me," he said, triumphantly. "You love me! You are mine by right, Nerissa—my dear!"

"Hush," she sobbed. "Hush! I am his—your friend's. I promised."

"You do not love him. You cannot love him."

"Oh, I have tried!" she cried. Then he took her in his arms and comforted her—he who had been my friend.

I went stealthily away. It was well that I had no weapon then.

That night I dreamed the old dream of her death. In the morning I concealed a small sharp dagger about me and went to see her. When I kissed her she half turned her face away.

"Have you anything to say to me, Nerissa?" I asked.

"No," she answered, with a little catch in her voice. "I do not think so. Oh, no!"

"Nothing?" I asked again. "Think." My fingers fumbled at the dagger. When she confessed that she was faithful, I would slay her. I thought.

"Nothing," she said, slowly. "Only—name the day that you will." She was loyal, since she knew how greatly I loved her. I might have known.

"Kiss me!" I cried fiercely. She yielded just one faint little embrace. I caught her in my arms and kissed her hair, her eyes and her lips a thousand times. * * * Then the words of Charmicles, the charioteer, came back to me. "If I loved her enough, oh king, perchance I should set her free."

I snapped the dagger before her and threw the pieces away.

"I—I came to kill you," I said. Then I fled into the street. People leaped aside from my path as I sped along to my old friend, Dr. Strange.

"Put me away," I demanded, "or some day I shall kill her. I am mad!" So they put me away.

That is ten years ago. I have stayed here since, except twice, when they have taken me to Egypt for some researches. I am seeking for the spell. Soon I shall find it. Then I shall sleep—to wake again. This time she loved me a little. There will be a third act—and who knows?

He dropped his head in his hands and was silent. I left him thus. * * *

"A sad case," said the doctor. "A very sad case. Homicidal mania, complicated with the delusion that he is an ancient king. It is a thousand pities. He is the authority of the century on Egyptian antiquities, you know, and on most points as sane as you or I."—Madame.

A period of 44 years is sufficient to determine the success or failure of a business. The W. W. KIMBALL COMPANY was established in 1858. Since that time they have manufactured and sold about sixty-six thousand pianos and about two hundred and twenty thousand organs. The factories have been enlarged from time to time until they are now twice the size of any piano and organ factory in the world. Kimball Pianos and Organs are the very highest possible standard. They are celebrated throughout the musical world for their wonderful depth, brilliancy and purity of tone, their great strength of construction and durability—making them the special favorites with all the great musicians and musical instructors throughout the country as seen by the hundreds of endorsements and many gold medals awarded in competition with other makes. Kimball Pianos and Organs are sold direct from their large factories at one small factory profit. They are fully guaranteed. We shall be glad to hear from any one desiring strictly first-class instrument.

AURORA.

There is a realm, a realm of other times.

So far away,

I can but gently muse of it in rhymes

Since I am gray;

It is the realm of youth, the realm of light

Where every scene is beautiful and bright—

A fairy land.

I once was a dweller there, so long ago

That now it seems

So dim and fanciful I scarcely know

If in my dreams

I but held it once, or whether I

In flesh and blood

Drank in the splendors of its opal sky,

Its field and flood.

Or this or that, the path that to it leads

I cannot find;

The way is long and tangled with tall weeds

That choke and blind.

Yet sometimes even now I hear the songs

Of those dead days—

The music to no other land belongs,

No other ways.

Anon into this world of care I wake

And with a sigh

Am once again what time and change can make

Of passers by—

A soul that beats against its prison bars

And longs to flee—

A hope that ever searches for the stars

It may not see.

Yet, sometimes, be it told, when sunset glows

In distant skies,

Afar I see my long-lost realm of rose

A moment rise,

Since, after all, our gates of sunset are

To other lands,

But morning's portals, swinging where the star

Of day commands.

Dawn is eternal; ever round the earth

She swiftly goes;

Immortal youth is hers, and light and mirth

And deathless rose.

Age is her shadow; where her feet have trod

Again they tread,

And there, forever, lifts the throne of God,

And wakes the dead.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought that she must soon die from pneumonia, but she be ged for Dr.

Kings New Discovery, saying that it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c.

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good.

ous malady is felt on organs and nerves and muscles and brain. There

Dr. King's New Life Pills are a safe

COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge,

Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice.

He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure stomach and liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever.

It's positively guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of static or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demonic enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that

Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale

James-Nelson.

Communicated.
Mr. Frank James, of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Daisy Nelson, an adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stafford, of Greensboro, were quietly married in the presence of a few friends by Dr. L. W. Crawford at his residence on West Market street on last Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The bride was handsomely attired in a gray satin suit and carried white carnations. They left for Columbia, South Carolina, their future home, the next morning.

THE WEATHER.

For North Carolina: Rain tonight and probably Sunday. Warmer tonight, fresh east to south winds.

Highest temperature for the past 24 hours, ending 8 o'clock this morning, 44, lowest 22.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Fariss' drug store will be open tomorrow.

Mr. J. B. Hanks is back at his prescription desk at Fariss', after several days illness.

Mr. John B. Wright has one of the prettiest calendars of the season—the Sohmer piano player.

The services at Friends church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock will be conducted by J. R. Jones, of Guilford College. Usual services Sunday night.

And again rumor is at it. This time it is two of Greensboro's pretty young ladies and two of our most popular young men—but the date will be given later.

The meeting of the enumerators for the Sunday School census will be held at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in the reading room of the Southern Loan and Trust Company building. The meeting will adjourn in time for those who wish to attend the mass meeting of Sunday School workers at the Baptist church.

The revival services at Centenary church are increasing in interest. Last night a number of penitents went forward in response to the invitation, and three were converted. The services will continue. Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a special Sunday school service, to which the public is invited.

Damages $125.

Yesterday afternoon and this morning the court was occupied in the trial of the suit of Preddy vs Boldin. The former, a young woman, who once lived with the latter, an old one, sued her for $5,000 damages, alleging that the old woman had slandered her in saying that she had stolen some articles. The jury brought in a verdict of $125 damages. Col. Jas. T. Morehead appeared for the defendant, and Bynum & Bynum for the plaintiff.

Will They Grant 'Em?

A committee of the Board of Aldermen appointed to investigate the applications for license to sell whiskey met last night and discussed the matter. The full Board meets tonight and it is pretty certain that the license of all the applicants, perhaps barring one, will be granted. The high license tax bill has been put through the legislature, and everything is now smooth.

B. Y. P. U. Entertainment.

The Baptist Young Peoples' Union were entertained last night at the home of Miss Flora Swain on Fayetteville street. Games were indulged in until 10 o'clock when dainty refreshments were served. Each received a card decorated in the Union colors, as a souvenir. At 11 o'clock they bid the hostess good-night, all voting it a most enjoyable occasion.
